THAT the first piece of concrete pavement on W. Main-st was laid just 25 years ago in front of the stores of George F. Grand-Girard. H. M. Parrett, F. B. Brunner, W. W. Miller, B. Friedman and W. Dotter. The project was completed in the latter part of April, 1907. Chester F. Lutz, the contractor for most of the concrete pavements laid in the city, completed this first job.

That the first rural route from the Circleville post-office was started in 1899 by John Lewis who was the first carrier. He used a bicycle at first but later changed to horse and buggy to complete his route which started south on the Chillicothe-pk and ended on the Island-rd. He received a salary of $800 per year. On March 1, 1902, seven regular rural routes were established. The first carriers were Mr. Lewis, H. A. Brown, George H. May, Sam Kinder, George H. Fissell, George Henderson and W. B. Watts. Mr. May and Mr. Watts are still in service. The eighth route was begun in 1904 with Guy Culp as carrier. The last carrier to discard the horse and buggy mode of carrying mail was Mr. May on Route 3 in 1920.

That J. M. Calvert in April, 1907, opened the first meat market in the village of Whaler.

THAT Pickaway-co has had a number of contributors to English literature. Among these are Caleb Atwater, recognized as the father of education in Ohio; Lillie C. Darst who completed a number of accepted poems; "History of Ohio Birds" by Dr. Howard Jones is conceded to be one of the best in the country; "Accidents and Emergencies" published in 1894 was written by Dr. Thomas Blackstone of this city; Harry E. Lutz, once heralded as "Student's Life Abroad" and Father Sam B. Hedges of here wrote "Life of Father Marquette" and "Education in the Philippines." This county has also furnished contributors to the musical field. Prof. Henry Rosenfield composed "Flee As a Bird to the Mountain." Edward Wittich composed "A Flower of Gold" for the piano and the music for "There's Rest for the Weary," a well known hymn. Mr. Wittich considered "Chansonnette" and his impromptu "Alla Polaire" his best works. Albert T. Wittich composed "Knights of Pythias March."

That George W. Snider, S. Court-at grocer, Thursday celebrated the completion of his 30th year in the grocery business. He first began in the building now occupied by Kroger's store at Ohio and Court-sts. He later built the store building which he now conducts just below the railroad and has been in this location since.

THAT McCoy Brothers, Mrs. Sterling Croman and J. G. Shortridge of Circleville R. F. D. are direct descendants of William McCoy, one of the first settlers of Chillicothe. The name of the town meaning "Old Town" was chosen by General Massie who owned the land on which the city was laid out. Chillicothe began as a settlement in March, 1796. There are also 14 descendants of Duncan McArthur, one of the first settlers, living in Pickaway-co.

That the Chesapeake and Ohio Northern R. R. bridge which spans the Ohio river at Sciotoville is the largest and heaviest continuous truss type railroad bridge in the world. It was completed in 1917, having a main span of 1,550 feet. The heaviest chord member weighs 87 tons. Approaches to the main span are made by two viaducts, 823 and 1,063 feet, respectively.

Judge Davis to Pass Sentence Next Friday; Noted Attorney Makes Scathing Statement After Hearing Decision of Jurors Including Six Americans

HONOLULU, T. H., April 30.—"The four defendants in the Fortescue-Massie case were convicted for something that Lieut. Thomas H. Massie never intended to do.

"I can't understand it. The verdict is a travesty on justice and on human nature and on every emotion that has made us what we are from the day the human race was born."

With these solemn words, Clarence Darrow, 75-year-old master of the defense, today moved to secure an appeal from the manslaughter conviction rendered by a polyglot jury against Lieut. Massie, Mrs. Grace Hubbard Fortescue, and two naval enlisted men accused of the "honor slaying" of Joseph Kahahawai.

Darrow To Go To High Court

HONOLULU, T. H., April 30.—Clarence Darrow, chief defense counsel for the four convicted "honor slayers," will carry the case to the United States Supreme court in his fight to win a new trial, he said today.

As the first step, he said, he would take advantage of every opening afforded under the territorial law, including a motion for a new trial, a motion for an arrest of judgment and a formal notice of appeal to the Hawaiian Supreme court.

The Governor of Hawaii, Lawrence Judd, has the sole power of pardon in the territory and his acts in this connection are not subject to review by any court, a study of the territorial laws revealed today.

Should Massie-Fortescue defendants be brought before him he would not need to consult a pardoning board, but could sign a pardon at any time, even before a sentence is passed.

The defendants may also be paroled at any time being sentenced to the territorial prison.

ECONOMY PLAN THOT FAILURE

Deep Cuts in Federal Expenditures Defeated at Every Turn in Congress.

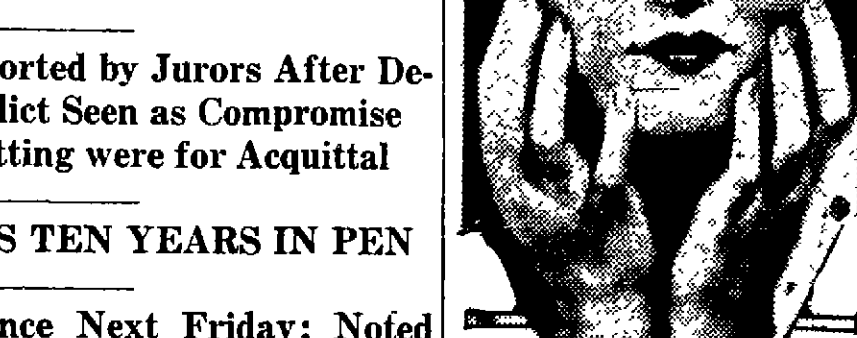

WASHINGTON, April 30.—Leaders of the economy movement in the House today had virtually abandoned hope of effecting deep cuts in federal expenditures through the so-called "national economy program."

With the House wrecking the $200,000,000 money-savings plan presented by the economy committee after two months work, those in charge of the bill struggled to save what they could in the hope the Senate will revamp it.

After a spectacular three-day floor battle in which both plans of Democratic leaders and President Hoover were thrown overboard, the House plunged into another day of controversy with action near on the proposed merger of the army and navy and reduction of veterans' benefits.

Both of these recommendations faced attacks from Democrats and Republicans alike, with indications that they, too, may be knocked out of the bill as false economy.

Velma Preferred

In order to insure funds for launching her motion picture career, Velma Gresham, of Memphis, Tenn., newly arrived in Hollywood, has incorporated herself for $20,000 under the name of Velma, Inc. After studying statistics, showing that an aspirant to movie fame must spend at least two years before realizing any sizeable financial returns, Velma decided to sell shares of stock in herself.

CURTIS GOES TO SEA TODAY

Significance Seen in Trip of Lindbergh Investigator From Norfolk.

NORFOLK, Va., April 30.—Departure of the yacht Maroon to a mysterious destination with John Hughes Curtis aboard today revived the belief in some quarters today that perhaps a contact is being established with the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby. In fact there was a strong undercurrent of excitement in Norfolk as developments were awaited.

With Curtis, chief of the Norfolk negotiators aboard the Maroon, are Edward B. Bruce, retired Elmhurst, New York banker, and Lieutenant George L. Richard, navy flyer, who has accompanied Curtis on various other missions in connection with the case.

Significance was attached by some observers to the fact that two new telephone trunk lines have been ordered put in at the Monticello hotel today. The Monticello is owned by Colonel Charles H. Consolvo who also owns the yacht Maroon. A suit of rooms is also held in readiness for an emergency.

A rumor that Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh had been at Yorktown, Va., in the last day or two to assist in the negotiations was found to be untrue upon a thorough investigation in Yorktown.

MAY DAY IN OHIO FEARED

Henderson Says Guardsmen Ready to Halt Any Radical Demonstration.

COLUMBUS, April 30.—The Ohio National Guard stands ready to be mobilized at a moment's notice in the event of any serious outbreak during May Day demonstrations expected tomorrow in more than 30 towns and cities throughout the state. Adjutant General Frank B. Henderson said today.

Although little trouble is anticipated Henderson said every precaution has been taken to cope with any situation that might arise.

Guardsmen stationed in the Eastern Ohio coal fields which have been in a state of turmoil since April 1 with a calling of a strike in protest to wage slashes will remain on duty over May Day. They will probably be recalled shortly afterward, Henderson said unless the situation becomes more serious.

GOVERNORS ON FAST FLIGHT

Rolph and Bazler Try To Reach Los Angeles For Dinner Engagement Today.

CINCINNATI, April 30.—Still confident that they will be able to arrive in Los Angeles in time for dinner this evening Governors James Rolph of California and Fred Bazler of Nevada resumed their flight to the west coast city at 10.10 a. m. today.

The flight, the first gubernatorial dawn to dusk hop, was resumed after nearly a three hour delay here because of bad weather conditions. When the plane, a racing monoplane owned by Earl B. Gilmore, Los Angeles oil man, took off with Colonel Roscoe Turner at the controls the weather was described as "sloopy."

"I feel certain we can make it to Los Angeles in time for dinner," Colonel Turner said. To keep the dinner engagement the party must cover the remaining distance in about twelve or thirteen flying hours.

Colonel Turner indicated that he would fly by way of Springfield, Mo., Amarillo, Texas, and Winslow, Ariz.

CANDIDATES BUSY

Six Democratic Posts Are Not Opposed

With the primary election only 10 days hence interest in contests for four nominations on the county Democratic ticket is increasing. The campaigns to date have been quiet with all candidates doing much more working than talking, although a few reports of "mud-tossing" have entered into the campaign.

The four offices for which more than one person aspire are Probate Judge, County Commissioner, (two to be nominated), County Recorder and County Surveyor.

CANDIDATES LISTED

For the former office E. A. Brown, incumbent, is opposed by Lewis C. Hammell and Charles Young.

Those seeking the commission are Ralph E. May, J. R. Pitt, Burr H. Rader, W. M. Beavers, George Curry and Willard H. Justus. On the Republican ticket Marvin Dreibusch and Edgar W. Beatty, incumbents, are candidates for second term.

HUEY LONG IRED

WASHINGTON, April 30.—After chiding the Republicans for years over their insurgen's the Democrats awoke today to find serious threats of rebellion in their own Senate ranks.

The attack on Senator Robinson, Democratic floor leader, by Senator Huey P. Long (D) of Louisiana was minimized by Democrats but gave them serious cause for alarm.

Long branded the whole leadership of the Democratic party as "uncompromising" and threatened to vote "No" for a Republican or a Farmer-Laborite next fall, if the opposing candidate offered a platform leading to redistribution of wealth.

ASHVILLE TO PRY OFF LID SUNDAY 2:30

Art Steele Expected to Break Into Lineup Against New Albany.

A large delegation of Circleville baseball fans will be present in the stands at Ashville Sunday afternoon ready to give Art Steele, popular local athlete, a hand when he is inserted into the Ashville lineup.

Steele was signed by Manager Stoker of the up-county club last week and is to be used in the regular lineup on the infield. It is generally understood that he is slated to get "Chuck" Murray's job at the short stop position. Steele, the regular short stop on the club for the past two years, has slumped in his hitting and Stoker feels Steele will greatly strengthen his team's offense.

CROWD EXPECTED
The game is expected to attract a record crowd since New Albany has won the pennant in the loop for the past two years and Ashville has been the runner up. Stoker has greatly strengthened his team by signing Art Walker of Fox and Steele, infielders, and Emerson Beattie and Ray Smith, two outfielders. He has also added two new pitchers in "Bo" Wellington, right hander and "Slim" Costlow, a rookie southpaw. One of these youngsters is likely to be his choice to start the opener against the strong New Albany nine.

The Ashville manager believes he has the best ball club he has ever had and if he gets anything like good pitching he says his club will be right up there all the way. It has been rumored during the past week that Stoker is trying to obtain the services of Lefty Pinto of Yellow Bud, who formerly pitched for the Philadelphia Nationals. It is possible that he might spring a surprise on the fans Sunday by trotting this ex-big leaguer out to do the hurling.

BEGINS AT 2:30
The game tomorrow will be a big event and will offer some fine entertainment since the Ashville band is to be on hand to keep things in general pepped up throughout the afternoon.

The umpire Ike Aiselstein is to about PLAY BALL at exactly 2:30.

DRESDON, Mo.—Mrs. Mary Kemp, 92, attended the golden wedding anniversary celebration of her son, W. O. Kemp and his wife here. The son is 72 years old and his wife 75.

WEAVER IS TOUGH

NEW YORK, April 30.—"Slow music, professor and fast balls." That's what Manager Walter Johnson of the Washington Senators says to Monte Weaver, former professor at the University of Virginia, when he sends his slender right-hander to the mound. And the formula works like a charm, for the Baltimore recruit has won all four of his starts in the American league this spring. Three of his triumphs have been registered over the Athletics.

Weaver conquered the fading champions for the second time in five days yesterday when he won a 2 to 1 duel from big George Earnshaw. The rookie yielded only five scattered singles and scored the winning run after singling in the fifth inning. The Mackmen, beaten in eight of their last nine starts, are only half a game out of the cellar.

Thanks largely to Weaver, the Senators have trimmed their Philadelphia rivals in five out of seven games this year and have handed the champs a terrific jolt that will be felt by the Mackmen for a long time.

RELAYS HEAD TRACK EVENT

Some of Greatest Runners of Nation Gather at Philadelphia For Classic.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 30.—A glittery galaxy of relay runners will bounce blithely through the Pennsylvania ozone here this afternoon in the final session of the two day relay meet sponsored by the University of Pennsylvania.

If the ideal weather of the past 48 hours continues, it is likely that about 30,000 track and field enthusiasts will be parked in Franklin Field watching not only some of the greatest relay teams of America but spirited action but some special track events as well.

57 IN CENTURY
The 100 yard dash, a special event, has attracted 57 entries, included are some of the finest runners in the land. The Atlantic seaboard, the southland and the middle west have entered their great sprinters and with the track in perfect condition it is possible that a new record for the carnival may be hoisted.

Each of the relay events of the afternoon involves a championship of America. There will be something like 30 other relays for high school teams. And to make today's extravaganza a bigger and better bargain, collegians of sprinkling value will compete in such special events as the hammer throw, discus throw, javelin throw, shotput, high jump, broad jump and pole vault.

Many of the brilliant prospects for the U. S. A. Olympic squad are among the entries in the "specials" and it is possible that some amazing heights will be soared by the aerialists and that the throwers may cause many existing field marks to quake tremulously.

Mickey Walker Whips Kingfish

CHICAGO, April 30.—Mickey Walker, deservedly entitled "The Bulldog," today turned a grimly desirous eye on the world's heavy-weight crown worn by Max Schmeling.

His right to contend for possession of that crown was considerably enhanced last night when the stocky little New Jersey ring veteran arose from the canvas in the first round to overcome a younger, heavier and stronger adversary, Kink Levinsky.

His display of superb courage and tenacity in winning the ten-round decision edified exactly 19,995 wide-eyed patrons who poured $73,592 into the vaults of the Chicago stadium.

Having conquered Levinsky, one more barrier remains in Mickey's path before he can justly demand a match with the winner of this summer's Schmeling-Jack Sharkey championship fight. That barrier is Ernie Schaaf, protégé of Sharkey and the report goes that preliminary negotiations for a battle between Schaaf and Walker have already begun.

Levinsky last night moved a dangerous obstacle to overcome Chicago's 21-year-old graduate of the fish market, thrust for a speedy knockout. In the very first round he floored his 21-year-old adversary with a sharp left followed by a sledge-hammer right, his best weapon. But he weakened as the fight progressed.

Oratory seems to be a study on the way. Virtually the non-stop fight records are held by a variety.

Chicago Trades More Athletes

CHICAGO, April 30.—The Chicago White Sox remained in the throes of their trading orgy today with the announcement from the club's headquarters of a third deal within the past week.

The newest transaction involves three White Sox players, two Boston Red Sox performers and a cash consideration of $7,500. It brings the total of White Sox players transferred to other clubs within the week to seven.

Smead Jolley and Johnny Woodward, outfielders, and Catcher Benny Tate, will go to the Red Sox in a flat exchange for Catcher Charles Berry. For $7,500 the White Sox will acquire John Rothrock, Boston outfielder.

Harry Grabner, White Sox secretary, said that the transaction was consummated in furtherance of the management's efforts to strengthen both the defensive and batting power of the Comiskey club.

TROUBLE STRIKES FAMILY 3-FOLD

BELLAIRE, O., April 30.—Seven-months old Betty Louise Burch has been buried by her father with his own hands because grave diggers won't work without pay.

Poverty-stricken after being visited by misfortune repeatedly in recent weeks, Grover Cleveland Burch, the child's father, cast off his grief and dug a little grave for her in the hills back of their home.

Betty Louise died while the family was returning from funeral services for another daughter, Ruth Ann, 3. The troubles commenced when Marie Burch Doyle, 17, was found strangled in West Virginia three days after she left home to meet her husband, from whom she had separated. The apparent murder has not yet been solved, the husband having been unable to offer any clues.

GUARDSMEN PROBE MINE AREA BLAST

CADIZ, O., April 30.—A mysterious explosion which rocked the vicinity of the Tasa mine, in the heart of the eastern Ohio strike area, was investigated today by Ohio National Guardsmen stationed here.

A flaming cross loomed up in the night after the explosion, militiamen said. The blast, along with a demonstration by pickets at the Steubenville high shaft coal mine, disturbed the peaceful calm that has settled over the strike zone in the past week.

heal up and bind the wounds and bring love, happiness, and understanding, but they saw fit to convict. I am disappointed—very disappointed."

OUT 48 HOURS

The decision of the jury was reached 30 hours after the case had been placed in its hands. From the very start rumors prevailed that the count has stood 10 to two, or even eleven to one for acquittal.

Shortly before the decision was announced, Judge Charles S. Davis ordered court into session and asked Foreman John F. Stone if a verdict had been reached.

Informed that it had not, Judge Davis asked if it was in prospect. He was told that it was, and a little later it came with stunning suddenness.

Mrs. Massie broke down when she heard the words pronounced which made her husband a criminal in the eyes of the law for the attempt to avenge her honor.

The defendants were surrendered into the custody of Capt. Ward Workman of the naval base, but before the officer had exchanged sharp words with Prosecutor John C. Kelley.

The youthful Kelley, elated at his victory over the noted Darrow, shook hands with the aged lawyer and smiled broadly.

A police guard has been placed around Kelley's home, and around the home of Judge Davis. Both have received threatening letters.

The defendants, buoyed previously by reports that the jury favored acquittal, were bitter. "I expected it. I felt all along that we would be unable to get a fair and just trial in Honolulu."

Marlene at Cross-Roads in Hollywood Film War

German Star May Side With Rebellious Director Who Discovered Her and Sacrifice Brilliant American Career.

Following the suspension of Josef von Sternberg, famous film director, by the Paramount Studios, owing to his refusal to direct a picture, the story of which he disapproved, all Hollywood is asking itself what the attitude of Marlene Dietrich is going to be in the matter. Miss Dietrich was to have been the star of the picture involved and now that B. P. Schulberg, managing director of production at Paramount, has suspended von Sternberg's contract and assigned another director to steer Marlene through the picture, speculation is rife as to what course the German star will take. It is felt in some quarters that her sense of loyalty to von Sternberg may overcome her discretion and result in her siding with the director in open rebellion against the movie moguls. It was von Sternberg who made Marlene into the star she is today. In 1929, she was playing in a little revue in Berlin when he recognized in her a potential rival to the great Garbo. He brought his protégée to America and by choosing her pictures and directing them has placed Marlene at the top of the movie ladder. Should Miss Dietrich decide to string along with her rebellious director, it may mean her extinction as a star in America. On the other hand she is free to bow to the wishes of the powers that be and remain secure on her pedestal. So the question of the moment in Hollywood is: "What will Marlene do?"

"Au bon marché" ... through Advertising

One of the largest department stores in Paris is named "Au Bon Marche." Translated, it means "at a bargain—cheap." Actually, "au bon marche" indicates to the French what a true bargain does to Americans—dependable merchandise at fair prices.

When so many shops everywhere are full of merchandise on which the "price appeal" is prominent, it is necessary that the wise shoppers insist upon products of known value and proven merit. The clock that will not keep time is hardly a bargain at any price. Foodstuffs and drug-store supplies must contain pure ingredients and be prepared under hygienic conditions, lest they become not only cheap but dangerous. Wearing apparel at a mark-down is only a snare and delusion if it lacks the quality that will result in wear.

Wise shoppers, these days, are refusing substitutes, are weighing true worth against price appeal. They are using the advertisements in this newspaper as a shopping guide. When a merchant advertises his wares consistently, you may be sure that he is telling the truth about them. He could not afford to do otherwise, even if he so desired. When a manufacturer of national scope appeals to you through these pages, you can believe and act upon his words.

"Au bon marche." Today advertising points the way to the only real bargains!

FULL TIME WORK AT 75

Dr. Dan F. Bradley, a national leader in the Congregational church, who recently passed his seventh-fifth birthday is pastor of a large institutional church with a heavy program and doing full time service. The age of retirement for ministers is 65. In a recent interview, Dr. Bradley gave the following reasons for his strength and vitality:

He said, "I am indebted to a fine physical inheritance: my father and mother were strong in physique. I owe much to hard work—work never hurt anyone. Then I have lived outdoors as much as I could. Fresh air and sunshine are the elixir of life. I never worried even when there was occasion to worry. I refused to respond, for I was worried that I was a lot of folks; then of course, I sleep well and that means a restoration of energy for the next day's work."

The young people are becoming more and more aggressive and active. If you want to know what the young people are thinking about and interested in, come at 6:30 and hear them discuss the much agitated question of today.

Feeling that folks should know the truth about the prohibition question, the young people of the church are going to discuss some of the questions which are bothering people today.

Is prohibition causing business depression?

Can prohibition be enforced?

Would it put idle men to work?

Is it the cause of crime?

Has it driven youth to drink?

Has it made criminals of youth?

Would repeal lower taxes?

The meeting will be led by John Maxey. The time is 6:30 p. m. The public is invited to come and profit by the discussions.

11. Isaac's Enemies (vv. 18-22).

He was not permitted long to enjoy this fruitful land. His prosperity incited the envy of the Philistines. They could not stand to see his increase in flocks, herds and servants. Success in any calling of life will provide envy. They demanded that Isaac should leave them. Wherever envy has begun its deadly work there must be separation. The Philistines took as their method of getting rid of Isaac the stopping up of the wells. Isaac did not contend for them, but peacefully withdrew to another place where he proceeded again to dig the wells of his father. He called them by the same names as his father had given them.

1. Esau, which means "strife" or "contention." Instead of struggling with them, he removed from them and digged another well.

2. Sitnah, which means "enmity." The Philistines strove for this well also. The name given shows that there was increased bitterness of feeling.

3. Rehoboth. Because of the bitter opposition, Isaac removed from them and digged another well which he called "Rehoboth," meaning "there is room." The third time he digged wells there was no strife. We should learn from his entire behavior that the way to have peace is to wear out our enemies with patience.

11. Isaac in Beer-sheba (vv. 23-25).

Immediately following Isaac's going up from among the Philistines, the Lord appeared to him. Our fellowship and privileges as sons and daughters of God are dependent upon our separation from the world (II. Cor. 6:14-15). Following this visitation, Isaac built an altar and called upon the name of the Lord. As soon as a meeting place with Jehovah was established, Isaac pitched his tent there. Following this Isaac's servants digged a well. There is no use of going among the Philistines to get water. Other water is to be found besides theirs.

After Isaac was established in Beer-sheba, Abimelech came desiring to make an alliance with him. This shows that he gained influence by peaceably withdrawing from the Philistines. His behavior proved to them that he was the friend of God.

1. Isaac in Gerar (vv. 12-17).

The appearance of the Lord unto him (vv. 1-5). Because of famine in the land, Isaac went into the country of the Philistines. The distress upon the land should have moved him to call upon the Lord (James 5:13). It were better to suffer in the land than to go among the enemies of God's people. The Lord graciously appeared to him there and directed him not to go into Egypt, thus avoiding the error of his father. He was permitted to sojourn in this land because it ultimately was to belong to his seed. It being part of God's grant to Abraham.

2. His lapse (vv. 7-11). He yielded to the same temptation as did Abraham many years before (Gen. 20:12, 13). This proves that it is not a good thing to dwell among the enemies of God's people. It was when Peter warned himself at the fire of the enemy that he was tempted to deny his Lord.

3. His prosperity (vv. 12-17). Isaac did not intend to make Gerar his permanent place of abode. He intended only to sojourn there. While there he sowed and reaped bountifully. This prosperity was no proof that God approved of his course. God sends his rain upon the just and the unjust (Matt. 5:45). Many men are rich in spite of their wickedness.

The closing World Methodist broadcast for the spring season will be given May 28th when a report of the important events of the General Conference will be given to the distant stations of Methodism.

Church social workers will meet in Philadelphia May 15-21 in connection with the national conference of social work. The primary purpose of the meet is to make religion a greater redemptive force in all social work.

The Rev. B. C. Warren recently completed a pastorate of 50 years in the Methodist church of Cold Springs, N. Y. Jews, Catholics and Protestants took part in the celebration honoring Rev. Warren.

Dr. John A. Morehead of New York City, president of the executive committee of the Lutheran World Convention, has received notice from the Finnish legation in Washington of his decoration by the government of Finland which has made him a Knight of the First Order and the white Rose. The award was made for his contribution to the work of reconstruction after the war and aiding in rebuilding national friendship.

MANCHURIA NEWEST OF WORLD STATES
Almost as Large as Union of South Africa.

Washington.—The creation of the world's newest proposed state has just been proclaimed from what heretofore has been known as "Manchuria." The announced sponsor for the projected government is the northeastern administrative committee. So far, four names have been bestowed on the new state, in rapid succession: Ankuo, Daido (meaning "Great Union"), Manchoukuo ("Land of Manchuria"), and Tatum ("Great Unity"). Until a name is finally settled upon, the new territorial unit might well be called, descriptively, "Manchuria plus Jehol," says a bulletin from the National Geographic society.

"Although the name of the proposed state seems to shift over night," continues the bulletin, "its territorial make-up is reasonably definite. In it are included the three provinces that heretofore have made up Manchuria: Liaoning (also known as Fengtien and as Mukden province), Kirin, and Heilung (also known as Amur province). To these have been added Jehol, hitherto the adjacent province of Inner Mongolia, to the west. The proposed state thus starts with approximately 443,000 square miles, an area almost as great as that of the Union of South Africa.

"The fledgling state of Manchuria and Jehol lies far in the north and has a severe winter climate. World's Most Fertile Lands.

"In Asia's new territorial unit is a population of approximately 33,500,000, yet large regions are sparsely peopled. The great density of population is in Liaoning, the southernmost and smallest province; and the least density is in Heilung, the northernmost and largest. Among the cultivated sections are some of the most fertile lands to be found in the world. Large areas of tillable land are still undeveloped.

"The new state is the world's leading grower of soy beans, producing annually nearly a quarter of a billion bushels. Approximately one-half the production is exported. In the months following harvest, long freight trains loaded with beans, roll ceaselessly down to the ports where ships of every nation wait to transport them to all continents. This bean traffic is one of the chief sources of income for the Manchurian railways.

"In addition to beans, there is a heavy production of wheat, millet, maize, and grain sorghum on the rich acres of Manchuria and Jehol. The live-stock industry reaches large proportions in some regions. In the north are extensive forests, and farther south are vast coal fields and sizable deposits of iron ore.

"In choosing a capital for the new state, the committee passed over Mukden, long the capital of Manchuria, and Harbin, the metropolis, and designated Changchun (also called Kuangchengzu), the third city in size. This choice may have been dictated by a desire to place the administrative activities in a central location; for with the addition of Jehol, Changchun becomes much nearer the geographic center of the new state than Mukden, and much nearer the population center than Harbin.

"Melting Pot" of Manchuria.

"Like many other cities of Manchuria, Changchun has an Old Town and a New Town. The New Town has sprung up since 1905 and centers around the imposing station of the Japanese railway. It has plazas and parks. Its streets are broad, and its buildings modern. A mile and a third away lies the Old Town, enclosed by a wall, save on the side bounded by a tributary of the Sungari river. The main street is surprisingly wide, but there is marked congestion in other streets. Together, the towns have a population of between 80,000 and 100,000.

"Changchun has been called 'the melting pot of Manchuria.' On its streets, constantly astir with bustle and excitement, one brushes shoulders with Manchus, Mongols and Chinese, Japanese, Russians, Europeans and Americans. Primitive carts loaded with sacked beans pass in long strings, competing with occasional motor trucks. Passengers ride in Russian droskies, jinrikishas, and American motor cars.

"Added evidence that Changchun is a melting pot comes when one views its varied houses of worship. There are Christian churches, Lamaist, and Shinto temples, Mohammedan mosques, and numerous shrines. Among the latter is one that might be called a Mammon shrine. It is for the veneration of an oriental god of wealth."

"THE LOVE TRAP"

by ROBERT TERRY SHANNON

SYNOPSIS

Mary Kennedy had youth and beauty and an intense fear of poverty. Almost the last words of her dying mother warned her against marriage to a poor man. Mary refuses the offer of a home with her married sister, Katherine. She rents a small room. While sitting in the park making plans for a job, an elderly man of distinguished appearance engages her in conversation.

CHAPTER II

"I'm not a man that falls for many girls," he said slowly. He drew on his cigar and emitted a cloud of fragrant smoke. "I saw you sitting on this bench when I was a hundred yards away and I thought you looked dependable. I seemed to know that, even before I saw you were a good looking."

She could feel the approval of his gaze; but there was a frankness about him that put her at ease. Men who admired a girl openly were not dangerous; besides he was so much older. Fifty, perhaps. With older men it was always easier for the girl to retain the upper hand, and, undeniably, he had a keen personality that she liked. She knew, instinctively, that he would not try to hand her a line, to put out any bunk flattery.

"Are you in the habit of speaking to strange girls?" she inquired, pleasantly malicious.

"No."

"Then, I suppose I am to feel flattered?" she said.

But trying to ruffle his feelings was as futile as pecking at a granite ledge with a tack hammer. He ignored her small guile.

"No, I just thought I'd like to talk to you, because I sort of liked you. The fact is, I look restless to me. I've just come away from one of the other kind—one of those beauties that's all fireworks."

"Your wife?"

"No, thank heavens! She was just threatening to stick a knife in my ribs."

Mary's brows lifted in surprise. She wondered how his dignity had held up under such a scene.

"You poor man—tell me more," she murmured half-mockingly.

There was a silence, as he puffed on his cigar, before he spoke again.

"It's a funny thing that I should start in spilling this stuff to a strange girl like you. Do you know I'm supposed to be the most closed-mouth man in New York?"

"I don't know anything about you."

"Well, if you've ever read the sporting page in the papers, you should know who Buck Landers is. That's me. I've been in the public eye promoting prize fights, owning a racing stable and operating amusement parks for twenty years. Done right well at it, too. Stop the first man you meet—stop a newsboy even, and he'll tell you who Buck Landers is. Mean to tell me, you never heard the name before?"

A thrill came over Mary. It occurred to her that the man she had heard his name mentioned dozens of times by men discussing sporting events, and she remembered a photograph of him last winter, taken at Miami with a group of millionaires. He was as famous as Jimmy Walker almost.

"I never thought I'd be talking to anyone as prominent as you, Mr. Landers," she said honestly.

"Yes, I may be prominent, but sometimes it gets a little tiresome to live in the spotlight," he declared. "It gets lonesome sometimes, it does for a fact. Maybe that's why I felt a hunch that I'd just like to sit down and chat a while with some nice sweet girl. As a rule, I never open up to anybody, but I suppose we'd all be better off if we'd spill the works once in a while. What do you think?"

Mary nodded. "I suppose we all have our troubles, but with all your money—I shouldn't think you'd have to worry about anything."

"That's what I used to think myself, in the old days," Buck Landers declared, a far-away look in his steady eyes. "I've learned different. I got a thrill out of pulling off something big, but a man can't live on excitement alone; he needs something quieter. Take New York—I can have practically anything I want in this town. Anything that money and pull can get. But those things are not enough to make me happy."

It struck Mary that the same words coming from a lesser man would have sounded silly. But, already, she was beginning to feel the full force of Buck Landers' personality. Imperceptibly, he drew from her a peculiar allegiance. He was the strangest man she had ever met, and somehow his strength exuded and fortified her. It pleased her, too, that he could so easily be frank with her, a stranger. She felt a little important.

"But haven't you a lot of friends?" she queried.

"How do I know? I've never needed friends. A lot of guys hang around me because they hope to get something out of me. When I want something I pay for it. If Buck Landers happened to wind up in the gutter, I don't know how many friends he could count on. None, maybe."

Mary looked at him closely. No, there was little of happiness in his face. He looked as mechanical as a cash register.

"I've heard it said," she remarked, "that you could not have much friendship unless you give out a lot of it in return."

His mouth formed a hard, straight line.

"I pay my debts in life. Sometimes, maybe, I do a little more; how about you?"

"People like me don't matter much in places like New York," Mary said philosophically. "I'm just a jobber."

"Got a job?"

"No."

Landers got upon his feet. His hat, his cane, the polish of his shoes gave him an almost aggressive smartness. Sparse and erect, he was a notable figure.

"Any time you want a good job you call me up at the Metropole Hotel and I'll put you in a good spot," he said abruptly. "That's no bluff. Maybe you and I could be friends—maybe not. Think it over."

Without a word further, he turned from her and walked down the gravelled path, his cane hooked in his arm, and the blue fragrance of his clear trailing behind him. For a half hour Mary sat there pondering—wondering if she had the courage to take advantage of his offer.

Back home alone in her tiny rented room, Mary was still conscious of the impact of a powerful personality. It had been almost like a collision to meet such a man as Buck Landers. She thought of her brother-in-law, her father, the boys who had taken her to movies and parties back in the Brooklyn days before her mother died. She felt kindly toward them all, but there was no denying they were all vibrating feebly on a futile plane of existence. They looked at the show of life from the back row of the gallery. They fed on scraps from the banquet table. The vital element of power was not in their blood. Worse, they had no understanding of the crude world that surrounded them, no aspiration to wrest what they wanted from Life.

Cowards, content with the meagre security of Saturday night's pay envelope.

Just to meet a man like Buck Landers and talk with him had opened up a whole new era in her thinking. It was not his money alone that impressed her. Some inexplicable quality of hard cold bravery, about him commanded a respect she had never before given to any man. He was ruthless, she imagined, in going after what he wanted—and dangerous, too.

She was sure he was a dangerous man. It might be dangerous for a girl to see too much of him. But, strangely, the realization did not make her put him out of her mind. It was funny how she kept thinking about him—he was an old man. Not old exactly, but beginning to be elderly.

The constant warning of her mother against impoverished marriage came stealing back into her mind, coloring her meditation. "Better be an old man's darling than a young man's slave." It was a proverb or something, and it sounded pretty cold-blooded, too.

There was a dim foreshadowing of an exciting prosperity when she thought about Buck Landers. There would be no harm in taking advantage of a lucky break. He had promised to get her a job—better than anything she would be likely to pick up unaided. It would be silly to turn back an opportunity.

"I am going to call him up," she said with vigorous decision.

Once she had made up her mind, all hesitation vanished. After all, it was the practical thing to do. A girl had to look out for herself.

When she telephoned him, two days later at the Metropole Hotel, his answering voice had a cold precision.

"Yes, certainly I remember you. Come down and we'll talk it over."

Half in curiosity, half in common sense, Mary presented herself at the desk in the lobby of the Metropole and inquired for Mr. Landers.

At the mention of his name the stern countenance of the clerk softened into an excess of politeness. He personally communicated into a small telephone behind the counter.

"Mr. Landers says for you to come right on up," he announced.

Pellagra Due To Lack of Vitamin G

This Disease, Which Is Not Contagious, Can Be Cured By Proper Diet

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.
U. S. Senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health
New York City.

A RECENT report of the United States Public Health Service states that though pellagra has been known for almost two hundred years, it is only recently that the cause of this disease has been made clear.

Contrary to common belief it is not an infectious disease, nor is it contagious, which affects the skin, stomach, intestines and nervous system, is believed to be caused by a diet lacking in certain foods.

Pellagra was a rare disease in this country until 1907. Since then repeated outbreaks have caused great anxiety throughout the country. I am glad to say that due to diligent research work, pellagra no longer confuses public health authorities.

It is now established that pellagra is a "vitamin-deficiency disease." Where there is a lack of certain vitamins in the diet, "vitamin-deficiency diseases" may occur. A diet constantly lacking in those fresh fruits and vegetables which supply vitamin G causes a "vitamin-deficiency" disease called scurvy. When children are continuously fed on a diet deficient in vitamin D, rickets results. In a similar way pellagra results from a diet which does not contain a sufficient amount of vitamin G, the "anti-pellagra" vitamin.

Many believed that pellagra was due to lack of money with which to purchase the proper food, and so it was known as a poor man's disease. This is not always true. Often it is because of wrong kind of food eaten. Severe dieting in an effort to reduce may cause this condition. In digestive disorders that interfere with proper nutrition pellagra may occur.

Fortunately the vitamin necessary to prevent pellagra is found in a variety of foods, some richer in vitamin G than others. Fresh lean meats, liver, milk, canned salmon and commercial wheat germ contain an abundant supply of this important vitamin. While eggs, dried peas, soy beans, dried milk and tomatoes contain the vitamin in smaller amounts. These must be eaten in larger quantities if they are to give the necessary protection. Vitamin G is found also in corn products, wheat and rye flour, oatmeal, salt pork, lard, butter, carrots and rice. But in so small amount that these foods cannot be depended upon regardless of the quantity consumed.

Often it is impossible to obtain fresh vegetables such as round, green, string beans, spinach and turnips, and of value in the prevention of pellagra.

The importance of fresh fruits, meat, vegetables and milk in the daily diet cannot be over-emphasized. It has been proved that pellagra may be produced or prevented by changing from or to the foods that contain vitamin G, the anti-pellagra vitamin. Pellagra is not induced by the amount of food eaten, but by the type of food and its vitamin G value.

Like other "vitamin-deficiency" diseases, pellagra can be prevented by supplying the necessary vitamin which is always found in a well-balanced and varied diet.

What are the points to be observed in making a success of the discussion method of teaching?

First there must be orderliness, the lessons must be handled systematically; you cannot think a matter out backwards. Then, there must be wise control under careful leadership. The teacher must keep things well in hand; he must be able to stop the person who talks too much or too long; the control of the discussion must be conducted in a Christian spirit. It is necessary that definite, concise and clear statements be cultivated. Useless and irritating arguments often comes from misunderstanding language and vague assertions. It will be helpful to write on the blackboard propositions that are to be submitted for discussion.

There must always be objectives, also. While many in the group may not have in mind the aim of the lesson under discussion, the teacher or discussor should know and state the general trend of the lesson that there may be creative and constructive discussion. Open-mindedness must be in evidence; the group needs to feel that they are truth seekers, convictions need to be strengthened if there are prepossessions they need to be eradicated. A high estimate needs to be placed on personal contributions of experience, information and opinion. A judging committee may be appointed that will present at the close of the session the outstanding fact gained from the discussion. If great pains are taken to carry out these points in the discussion method of teaching, there is likely to be an increased interest in Bible study.

The Daily Horoscope

Saturday, April 30, 1932

Small annoyances, restlessness and nervousness are the keynotes for today. Not altogether unfavorable if ordinary good sense is exercised. The emotions are apt to be easily upset and many folks may turn to some form of excess to drown their trouble.

The prohibition question takes on new interest, considerable friction is experienced by enforcing agencies. Agitation is apt to center around prisons, hospitals and public institutions. The social welfare workers are likely to have their hands full today. This is a time when people are apt to magnify their troubles and burden others with their misfortunes.

The lower elements of society may now occupy the time light. Much interest will be displayed in how the other half lives. The narcotic and liquor dealings of the underworld come to light and many secret affairs are brought to public attention. Corruption and graft may be exposed in some quarters and those who have a spotted past may be likely to receive much notoriety today.

People born from the 4th to the 14th of July or November in any year, may find this a good day for all matters touching on the affections. These people can make minor changes to advantage under prevailing indications.

Children whose birthday this is, will probably be of the "roving" kind. They are fond of amusement and being cheerful and imitative they like to entertain others. They seem to be contented with all most any environment having the faculty to make the best of things. While these children have adaptable natures, yet they are critical, also, methodical, especially in their own homes. In later life they are successful and live comfortable lives.

Among prominent people born on this date we find: Sir John Lubbock, Baron Avebury, English banker, 1834, William Henry Crane, American actor, 1845.

Who Is It?

BY DAVID ADKINS '38

From eighth grade comes this chubby chap, who don't let girls sit on his lap. He has high grades or I'll miss my guess. In the A. class? Oh, my yes!

He plays high and low tones on his little trombone. He's in the orchestra or I'll miss, my guess and in the band? Oh! my yes! Yes!

WHY WE "WE PUT ON" PLAYS IN SCHOOL

'Why put on plays? Why not let the professionals give the plays while the high school students watch the show?' This question is one sometimes asked by school patrons.

The enjoyment of the community through witnessing a play-a form of group activities-is in itself a justification for scholastic theatricals. When the educational and cultural value of the theatre is recognized, dramatics will take its place in the high school course or study along with history, science, home economics, and manual arts.

'One advantage of play production in the high school is that the "by-products" are of inestimable value when, and if, the direction of the play is in charge of a competent teacher who knows dramatic art and production. Through directed reading the student will become familiar with many good plays, some great plays, and as a "by-product" of this activity, his taste for the better things will develop,' says Maynard Lee Doggy of the State College of Washington.

William Mawley Smith once defined an educated man as "a man who is on to his job." The interest of the director is in the success of the play as measured by what the student-actors gain through the development of poise, imagination, balanced emotions, the mastery of vocal and pantomimic expression, and the ability to read lines intelligently.

The director who is "on to his job" will produce a play and the process will be marked by order, system, economy of time, and a minimum of juggling with routine schedules and programs. Naturally the student with the youthfulness of the immediate will be satisfied in the thrill of a play successfully done, a character sincerely played, but in his more mature days when he looks back over his high school career, he will realize that his experience as an actor resulted in certain "by-products" of more permanent value than the applause and bouquets of admiring friends and parents.

THE FINISH IS WHAT COUNTS

This past week was the beginning of the last term of school this year. It is usually at this time that there is a tendency on the part of some students to grow careless and thinking they will pass in their subjects on the grades that have been received heretofore, hand in assignments only when their "vitality" permits. They attribute this to spring fever.

It is a poor policy to rely upon past grades to carry one through to promotion. Not only might an uncertain grade appear, maybe unable to pass one, but the attitude taken is degrading.

If one works just enough to 'slip through' without having to do extra work to insure a good grade he is no asset to his school and will be of no credit to the world if this practice is continued. He is not fulfilling his duties owed to his fellowmen and has not paid his obligation to those who made it possible for his schooling.

A strong finish breaks many a record.

PRINCIPAL'S TOPIC

Were you proud of the report card you received this week? You could well be proud of it, no matter what the grades were, if it indicated that you had done your best work.

The fact that there were no failing grades on the card is not a reason for being proud of it. There may be pupils with some failing grades who have more reason to rejoice. They have worked conscientiously and prepared their lessons each day but have failed to measure up to the standards prescribed as minimum. Others have the ability to do their work easily but have made irregular preparation and studied half-heartedly. They should have honor grades but indifference has made a passing grade acceptable.

Does your report card show what you did or what you are capable of doing?
